Despite smart maneuvering by some SMBs, many are navigating rocky cybersecurity waters. With the right guidance, though, SMBs will learn that cybersecurity resilience is more than possible, even with limited budgets, dispersed IT teams, and constraints. Nowhere is this more true than in employee backgrounds.

To learn more about how to secure your remote workers, go to our resources page.

The answers are clear: With measured decreases in security posture coupled with more employees WFH who have, amidst trying times, increased their productivity, your employees and your organization deserve the best. Roll out permanent WFH models that include mandated cybersecurity reviews of new products and consider deploying an antivirus solution that can protect a distributed workforce.